Aquaflex "Alkorplan" Renovation at historic Norman Court School

After over 24 years of use any pool would be in need of a bit of an overhaul and when the 65' x 34' marbelite pool at Norman Court School needed just such a facelift they called in Spruce Pools near Salisbury for advice on how best the task should be undertaken.

Norman Court has been established as a place of educational excellence for over 100 years and its beautiful setting in 90 acres of prime Wiltshire Countryside demanded that the pool should be refurbished to a level befitting both its surroundings and its historical value.

Jeremy Chalke of Spruce Pools who oversaw the complete refurbishment said; "The pool shell had moved significantly and was covered with cracks plus the existing finish was very badly stained. There was also evidence of previous unsuccessful repair attempts and we recommended Alkorplan to be used as it would not only cover the cracks but also provide a long lasting, strong and attractive finish to the pool. The equipment apart from the shell had been pretty well maintained and after we had made good the shell all that remained was for Aquaflex to install the heavy duty Alkorplan lining.

Norman Court now once again has a leak free pool they can be proud of and will see them through many more years of educational and sporting excellence.
